PENNSTLVANIA. -- It has always been taught by the school geographies and histories that the State of Pennsylvania was named after William Penn, and such is the belief of the public; yet such is not the case. We have never seen but one history that disputed the naming of the Keystone State after William Penn, and that was the one written by Spencer, shortly after the rebellion, and he devoted several pages in the book showing facts and proving that Pennsylvania was named after Commodore Penn, the father of William Penn. With the exception of Spencer's history of the United States and the subjoined item, which was originally taken from Greely's New Yorker, for June 2, 1838, we have never beheld it in print:

it in print:

"The following account of the origin of the name Pennsylvania is extracted from a letter written by William Penn, its founder, dated January 5, 1681: 'This day, after many waitings, watchings, solicitings and disputes in council, my country was confirmed to me under the great seal of England, with large powers and privilege, by the name of Pennsylvania—a name the king would give it in favor of my father. I chose New Wales, being a hilly country; and when the secin me, and not as a respect in the king to my father, as it really was."

It is the prevailing opinion of the publie throughout the land that Tilden will be the Democratic candidate, and Blaine the Republican, for the Presidency. This is the wish of the greater majority of the voters of both parties, but as there is so much trickery in political conventions, there is no telling but that both parties may place dark horses in the field; but it is not probable that they will do so at the coming election, for the party that places in the field a weak candidate will be completely routed long before election day arrives.

Mormons are severally known as "good" Mormons, "bad" Mormons and "jack" Mormons. A "good" Mormon is one who refuses all interconrse with Gentiles, both socially and, as far as may be, in a business way. A "bad" Mor-mon is one who does not practice this ostracism, but who otherwise conforms to ostracism, but who otherwise conforms we ostracism, but who otherwise conforms with the canons of the church, pays his "tithing" regularly, and believes that Joseph ing "regularly, and believes that Joseph in the canon will their spiritual head. A ing" regularly, and believes that Joseph Smith is still their spiritual head. A "jack" Mormon is one who belongs to both sides, according to the company he is with. When a Mormon girl marries "on the outside," by which they mean a "Gentile," she is not at once excommunicated. She is given a certain period in which to convert her husband to the faith, failing in which she becomes an "apoatate." A girl who is "sealed" to one of the pillars of the church, that is, who has forsworn all marriage here on earth that she may be the "spiritual wife" of the said "pillar" in the world to come, loses all hopes of salvation by breaking these vows.—[Frisco Times.

An Eastern contemporary takes quinine as a subject to illustrate the working of free trade. In 1879 American manufac-turers imported 6,389,378 pounds of cinchona bark, or raw material for the manufacture of quinine. In 1883, after three years' experience with free trade in this article, the American manufacturers were so broken up that they imported only 3,539,325 pounds. But in 1879 we imported 228,348 ounces of quinine, and in 1883, 1,055,764 ounces. Thus we see the import of raw material has fallen of about one-half, while the imports of the manufactured article have increased in a much greater ratio. Almost all the manufacturing interests in the country would ona bark, or raw material for the manufacturing interests in the country would go the same way under a 20 per cent. reduction of the tariff.

Frisco is cursed with the presence of a few—not so very few—men who border so close unto total depravity that their room is far more preferable than their company. To one of these a merited castigation was administered on last Monday night by the Vigilantes. Others are said to be spotted.—[Frisco Times.

Idaho boasts of a mountain range bearing the name "Stingy Indian." It was probably named, says the Bodie Free Press, after a savage who selfishly refused to trade his reservation for a string of glass beads, a red blanket and a plug hat.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Daniel Musser, who foremerly lived in or near Carson, will communicate with A. favor of my father. I chose New Wales, being a hilly country; and when the secretary, a Welshman, refused to call it New Wales, I proposed Sylvania, and they added Penn to it, though I was much opposed to it, and went to the king to have it struck out. He said it was passed and he would take it upon him; nor could twenty guineas move the under secretary to vary the name; for I feared it might be looked on as a vanity in me, and not as a respect in the king

Two miners of Alum Creek, says the Walker Lake Bulletin, last week went up to the mountain above their cabin to look at some boundary lines. After their work was done they gave way to the inclination common to all men, to roll snowballs down the slopes of the drifts which had gathered in the ravines. One long slope, one mile in length, just above their cabin, was particularly tempting, and they went out of their way somewhat to get a chance to start some balls rolling. The sun had softened the snow a little, and the first ball began increasing in bulk as soon as it started. Both bulk and momentum increased until, swollen to an enormous size, it burst into several pieces, each of which continued gathering material until a strip of ground 100 feet wide was cleared of snow. The immense balls gathered rocks and earth as they moved, and the whole avalanche went over the cabin of the men who started it. It was an illustration of "sowing the wind and reaping the whirlwind," as the cabin and all it contained was taken up by the swiftly moving mass and carried to the bed of the stream. The destruction was complete, and the two men had to come to Hawthorne for a tent and blankets. They think now that starting avalanches is exciting sport, but a little too expensive.

A fiend near Kingston, Texas, recently killed his wife and stripped the bones of the flesh, when he proceeded to grind it into sausage meat, to be sold by him at the city meat market. Several families of the town dined upon the meat the next day, when they were terrified by discovering it to be human flesh. The man is now in jail, probably awaiting a long, tedious trial.

The Republican State Central Committee met on the 3d inst., in Virginia City. After some discussion it was decided to hold the State Convention for the purpose of nominating delegates to the National Convention in Virginia

Primaries for the same to be held April 12th. A second Convention for the nomination of Presidential Electors, Supreme Justice and Congressman, was ordered called at Carson City on September 4th, the primaries for the same to be held August 23d.

The appointment of delegates is the same to both conventions, and is on the basis of one delegate to each 100 votes, and one for each fraction of 50 votes, and over, cast for the Republican candidate for Supreme Judge at the last State election. On this basis the respective counties are to be represented as follows: Storey, 16; Ormsby, 6; Lyon, 3; Douglas, 3; Lander, 5; Humboldt, 4; Washoe, 7; Esmeralda, 7; Eureka, 9; Elko, 7; Nye, 3; White Pine, 3; Lincoln, 3; Churchill, 1. Total, 77.

The County Republican committees are instructed to call primaries for the election of delegates to the State Convention on Saturday, April 12th; the test at such primaries to be: "Are you a Republican and will you support the nominees of the Republican National Convention?" It was also decided that the primaries for the election of delegates to the Carson Convention shall be held August 23d; the above test being also applied at
